

BA in Religious Studies

ONLINE DEGREE COMPLETION PROGRAM AT CHICO STATE

RELIGIOUS STUDIES is the academic study of what religion is and how it shapes, and is shaped by, other cultural forces. Religion is increasingly recognized as a vital part of our individual and community identity, as a political force nationally and globally, and as both a source of conflict and a potential resource for healing social divisions.

Chico State's Bachelor of Arts in Religious Studies online program is a compact and fully-online degree—one of only four offered nationally—that offers both deep knowledge of major religious traditions and comprehensive exploration of the role of religion in the contemporary world. You will work closely with outstanding professors in small classes that will both challenge you and closely support your learning.

If I went back to college today, I think I would probably major in comparative religion, because that's how integrated it is in everything that we are working on and deciding and thinking about in life today.
