This study abroad program offers the opportunity to study the history, culture and archaeology of Greece from a diachronic perspective. The program will introduce you to Greece’s complex past through site visits, reading assignments, lectures, and exposure to Greek culture.

Greece presents a unique case: an EU country that sits astride supposed “civilizational” fault lines. This historical fact has colored and affected the development of the modern Greek nation-state since its founding, and it continues to do so today.

During the program we will explore this complex dynamic diachronically through the application of different types of evidence (literary, documentary, material) to grounded historical questions. In so doing, you will gain direct exposure to a wide range of issues and problems that historians, art historians, archaeologists, anthropologists, political scientists, and others continue to grapple with today.

Coursework

HIST 301 - Ancient History: Greece

HIST 498 - Special Topics: Medieval & Post-Medieval Greece

Faculty

Prof. D. DeForest
CSU, Chico
ddeforest@csuchico.edu

Prof. John T. Barnes
University of Tennessee – Knoxville
jtbarnes00@gmail.com

For details & application info visit: rce.csuchico.edu/passport/greece